FAREWELL SERMON

Preached by Rev. Dr. Lester, who had Been the Pastor

NEARLY HALF A CENTURY.

Heard by Hundreds at West Alexander-Historic Presbyterian Church Crowded With Life-long Friends of the Venerable Minister.

WEST ALEXANDER, Pa., April 30:nev. William Haven Lester, D. D., for forty-six years pastor of the Presbyterchurch at West Alexander, Washington county, preached his farewell symbol to a congregation of 1,000 persons yesterday at moon, and, in obedilared his pulpit vacant. It was an pressive sermon, delivered in an his church, erected upon an historic t. The congregation consisted of of the members who had heard his ret sermon delivered by Rev. Dr. Leser, and the descendants of those whose penes lay within the reach of his voice in the adjoining graveyard. It was dis-tinctly a congregation of "his people," and even a cursory glance was all that Was necessary to disclose the affection that subsists between pastor and people. It was an ideal day and the people from be country roundabouts were there. These people some years ago had calebrated the centennial of the founding of their church and naturally feit an in-terest in the going of their pastor, who had baptized, married and buried their friends for almost a half century.

Looking out of the window of the large and beautiful auditorium of the church into the adjoining burial ground, or, rather doing better than looking, walking for a few minutes into that "God's acre," there is found much that will explain the interest that attaches to the church and the prosperous community. The graveyard antedates the church and, indeed, furnishes the real reason for the existence of the church.

The Indians fighting back and forth in the great bend between the Ohio and Monongahela and Allegheny rivers found the Scotch-Irish settlers averse to giving up the precarious foothold they had secured in this locality and the dead that resulted from these forays were buried on the middle of the three ridges from which the church subse-

Primitive Days of the Church.

Immediately the church was creeted the enterprise and energy of the settlers in to tell, and from the day of security from savage invasion the era of prosperity began. The western limits of the village abutted upon the line that Mason and Dixon had drawn between freedom and slavery. Free Pennsylvania on its western frontier, scarcely relieved from the rayages of the Indians, was confronted and irritated by the aggressive impudence of slave Virginia. The early opponents of slavery found themselves eating the same bread and drinking the same wine from the same communion board. Later on the Knownothingism and the early germs of Republicanism were in active, aggressive array against the slaveholding element. and the slaveholder withdraw, whilst on the other hand the ultra-abolitionist took himself to the communion of the Freesoil church. The conservative Presbyterian, however, predominated and again the same board is good enough for former dissidents.

The church established education and began its good work as the most important factor in the upward career of the new community. Washington col-lege soon followed Jefferson and an academy and vigorously conducted fe-mule seminary gave West Alexander a standing and a tone in western Pennsylvania that made it a place of resi dence desirable at once from a commer cial and educational standpoint. Later Alexander Campbell established a modernized Baptist church, giving it his name, and college at Bethany, just across the line in Virginia, which, for a time at least, was a novel innovation in this Covenanter and Prosbyterian com-

Where Rev. Dr. Lester was Schooled. Such then were the conditions that Dr. Lester encountered one magnificent April morning in 1854. His literary career was taken at Amherst college and his theological course at Princeton. His orthodoxy was and is based upon a literal construction of the scriptures of the Old and New Testaments and his sermons have been a conscientious interpretation of his conception of his ideas. An accomplished linguist, a cultivated scholar, a profound student of books as well as of people, a courageous exponent of his peculiar ideas, he has impressed himself upon his community in the most valuable manner, and has given it a tone and a distinction that have caused general comment. His resignation came of his own motion in the nature of a genuine, painful surprise to

Dr. Lester's text yesterday morning was from a part of the eleventh chapter of Second Corinthians, "Be of one mind, live in peace; and the God of love and peace shall be with you." The text was apposite to the sermon that followed and farewells before and after the defeatures of the day's proceedings. Twenty-two of the members that greated his original appearance were audi-tors of his final effort and at the close of the service were affectionately great ed by their friend and pastor of fifty delicate crustaceans properly served in any hotel or restaurant in the city. The trouble is that they make no effort to keep them alive, and fifteen minutes after a crab has been gathered to its fathers it is no more fit for human food than a papier mache Easter egg.

"The proper way to handle a soft shell crab is to keep it alive in a bucket of wet moss until it is wanted for cooking. Then take it out, wash it, drive a knife blade under the head, roll it in cornneal and fry it light brown over a hot fire. Treated in that way it is one or tee greatest delicacies in the world. The fiesh is firm, sweet, jutcy and exquisitely tender. The right way to cat it is to turn it over on its back, lift off the tender under-plate with your knife blade, pass a coffee spoon down the depression in the centre, removing everything except the true pads of luscious white meat on each side and then thank the gods that you are alive. But at most of the places here crabs are simply butchered. They are killed and cleaned as soon as they arrive and put on ice until called for. That ruins them, for the reason that the fiesh undergoes a certain deterioration almost immediately after death. It loses its sweetness becomes dry and crumbles in the moutil like so much cornmeal. It doesn't taste any more like the real thing than hard cider tastes like champagne. I'm surprised that our local cooks haven't long ago mended their ways.

"In Charleston, Savannah, Baltimore, Mobile and a dozen other cities I could name, a dead crab could not be served. The patron always insists upon seeing it first, and unless it is alive and kick-ing he countermands the order. I have name, a dead crab could not be served. The patron always insists upon seeing it first, and unless it is alive and kicking he countermands the order. I have often seen foxy old epicures pinch off one of the small claws so as to be sure they were getting the same crab that was exhibited in advance."

The day on the stock market started off with another attempt to rush up prices by speculative manipulation with the purpose of attracting an outside following, but the short interest had been so far eliminated by the events of the latter part of last week that there was not sufficient demand from that source to keep up prices. Neither was there any awakened interest developed through the commission houses. The market, therefore, fell back and became dull and heavy, but without positive weakness until some of the later developments when the bears showed renewed vigor and sold prices to the lowest of the day. The violent break in Sugar was the principal element in the decline. That stock sold up to 121½ in the carly dealings and recovered to that figure after a reaction, and then fell saway with eccasional spasmodic rallisto 111½, closing only slightly above that. The news bearing on the stock consisted of a story from Boston giving elaborate details of alleged terms of settlement of the trade war and the expressed opinion of a prominent speculator just before sailing for Europe, that the war was settled. Several of the principals in the trade conflict denied the allegations during the day. The threatened strike on the New York Central caused a fall of 2½ ploints in that stock and had sympathetic effect elsewhere in the list. Missouri Pacific was pushed up to 60 on rumors that a dividend would be admitted to the directory. Both rumors falled to be confirmed by the event and the stock folloack, but saved a small net gain. The sicel industrials, after some show of weakness also became firm and closed generally with a small net gain. The sicel industrials, after some show of the steel and wire company. United States Leather made a considerable show of strength. Otherwise the market generally yielded to the reactionary tendency and closed very magr the lowest and easy in tone. There were no developments of importance in the money or exchange market, though both were scanned

There was some liquidation of May with purchases of July in exchange at 1½61½c discrence. During the session a spurt of liberal offerings from an influential trader caused a dip, but this was recovered, helped by the visible decrease of 2.186,000 bushels. Local receipts were 166 cars. May ranged from 39½40c and closed %6 ½c up at 40c. July sold from 40%211½c and closed ½c higher at 41c.

The trade in wheat was quite and consisted mostly in exchanging May for July at a spread of 1½c. As a result May, was relatively weaker than July, the latter closing with an appearance of standiness. Traders generally, were inclined to play even over the holiday to-morrow, a fact which contributed much to the quietude of the assion. Cables were weak and the weather favorable, but as an offset to these influences was the visible decrease of 2,332,000 bushels larger than had been anticipated. The decrease and the strength of corn caused a rally, following the early easiless, but it was lost. New York reported three loads taken for export.
